

Last Saturday, I went camping with Tom and Ben. We cooked food together. We were happy.

Later, we saw a candy house. It was made of sweets and candies. No one was in the house. We felt excited. We ran to the candy house.

We climbed on the house and started eating. Windows were made of yummy chocolate and the chimney was made of a strawberry ice-cream cone. They were all delicious. We were pleased and climbed up to eat the candies.

An old woman came back and she saw us eating the candy house. We immediately apologized for eating her house. The old woman said, 'Nevermind, it happened many times.' We promised to help her build the candy house again.
