A Picnic

Hi Liz,

You won't believe what happened to me yesterday.

Yesterday, the weather was hot and the sky was blue. It was the best weather for a picnic. I put on my sunglasses and my cap. I wore my white T-shirt and brought a hand-held fan. My mum brought some cherries and apples. She made a lot of sandwiches and salad. My dad bought two bottles of orange juice and we went to the Hong Kong Country Park.

We took a bus to the Hong Kong Country Park. First, we put a piece of picnic cloth on the grass and took out the food and drinks we prepared. We enjoyed the cool breeze while eating the food. We played skipping rope, hula-hoop and paper planes on the grassland.

Suddenly, a few monkeys came out from the trees and wanted to eat our fruit. I was scared because one monkey chased me. My dad stood up and chased away the monkey, but it wanted to counterattack me. Luckily, the monkey failed to do so. Finally, it ran away with the cherries. My dad was very brave.

After the incident, we continued to have the picnic. At dusk, we took a few photos together and were ready to leave. We took the bus and went back home. I appreciated the photos we took because they were very beautiful. I wanted to go for a picnic again with my family or friends.

Yours,

Erica
